An Ancient Text of Montor

*this text is very old and is written in an ancient Ilshenarian script
which is, at first read, completely
un-understandable;
however, upon close
inspection the letters
seem to change into a language that you can read; which language it is will vary depending upon the native, written
language of the reader;
an illiterate reader will not be able to read,
however*

There were once two Princes, walking in the woods. The road they were walking diverged, and
each went his path,
vowing to come back to
the fork and meet again.
So surprised were they
when the paths converged again, further along in the wood.

One the founder, the leader, the watcher. The other the watcher of the watchers. Both would leave and return, and die, and live.

One's time was long but has passed. When the blight of the gate is unleashed, you will know the other's time has come.....
